Naturally curly hair is frequently prone to dryness and breakage, so deep conditioning treatments are highly beneficial. Deep conditioners are even more beneficial for curls that have been colored or chemically treated.

What is so special about a deep conditioner?

These conditioners contain desirable conditioning agents designed to restore your hair's moisture levels, reduce hair breakage, and improve hair elasticity. The best deep conditioners make it easier to manage hair and improve the overall look, feel, and texture.

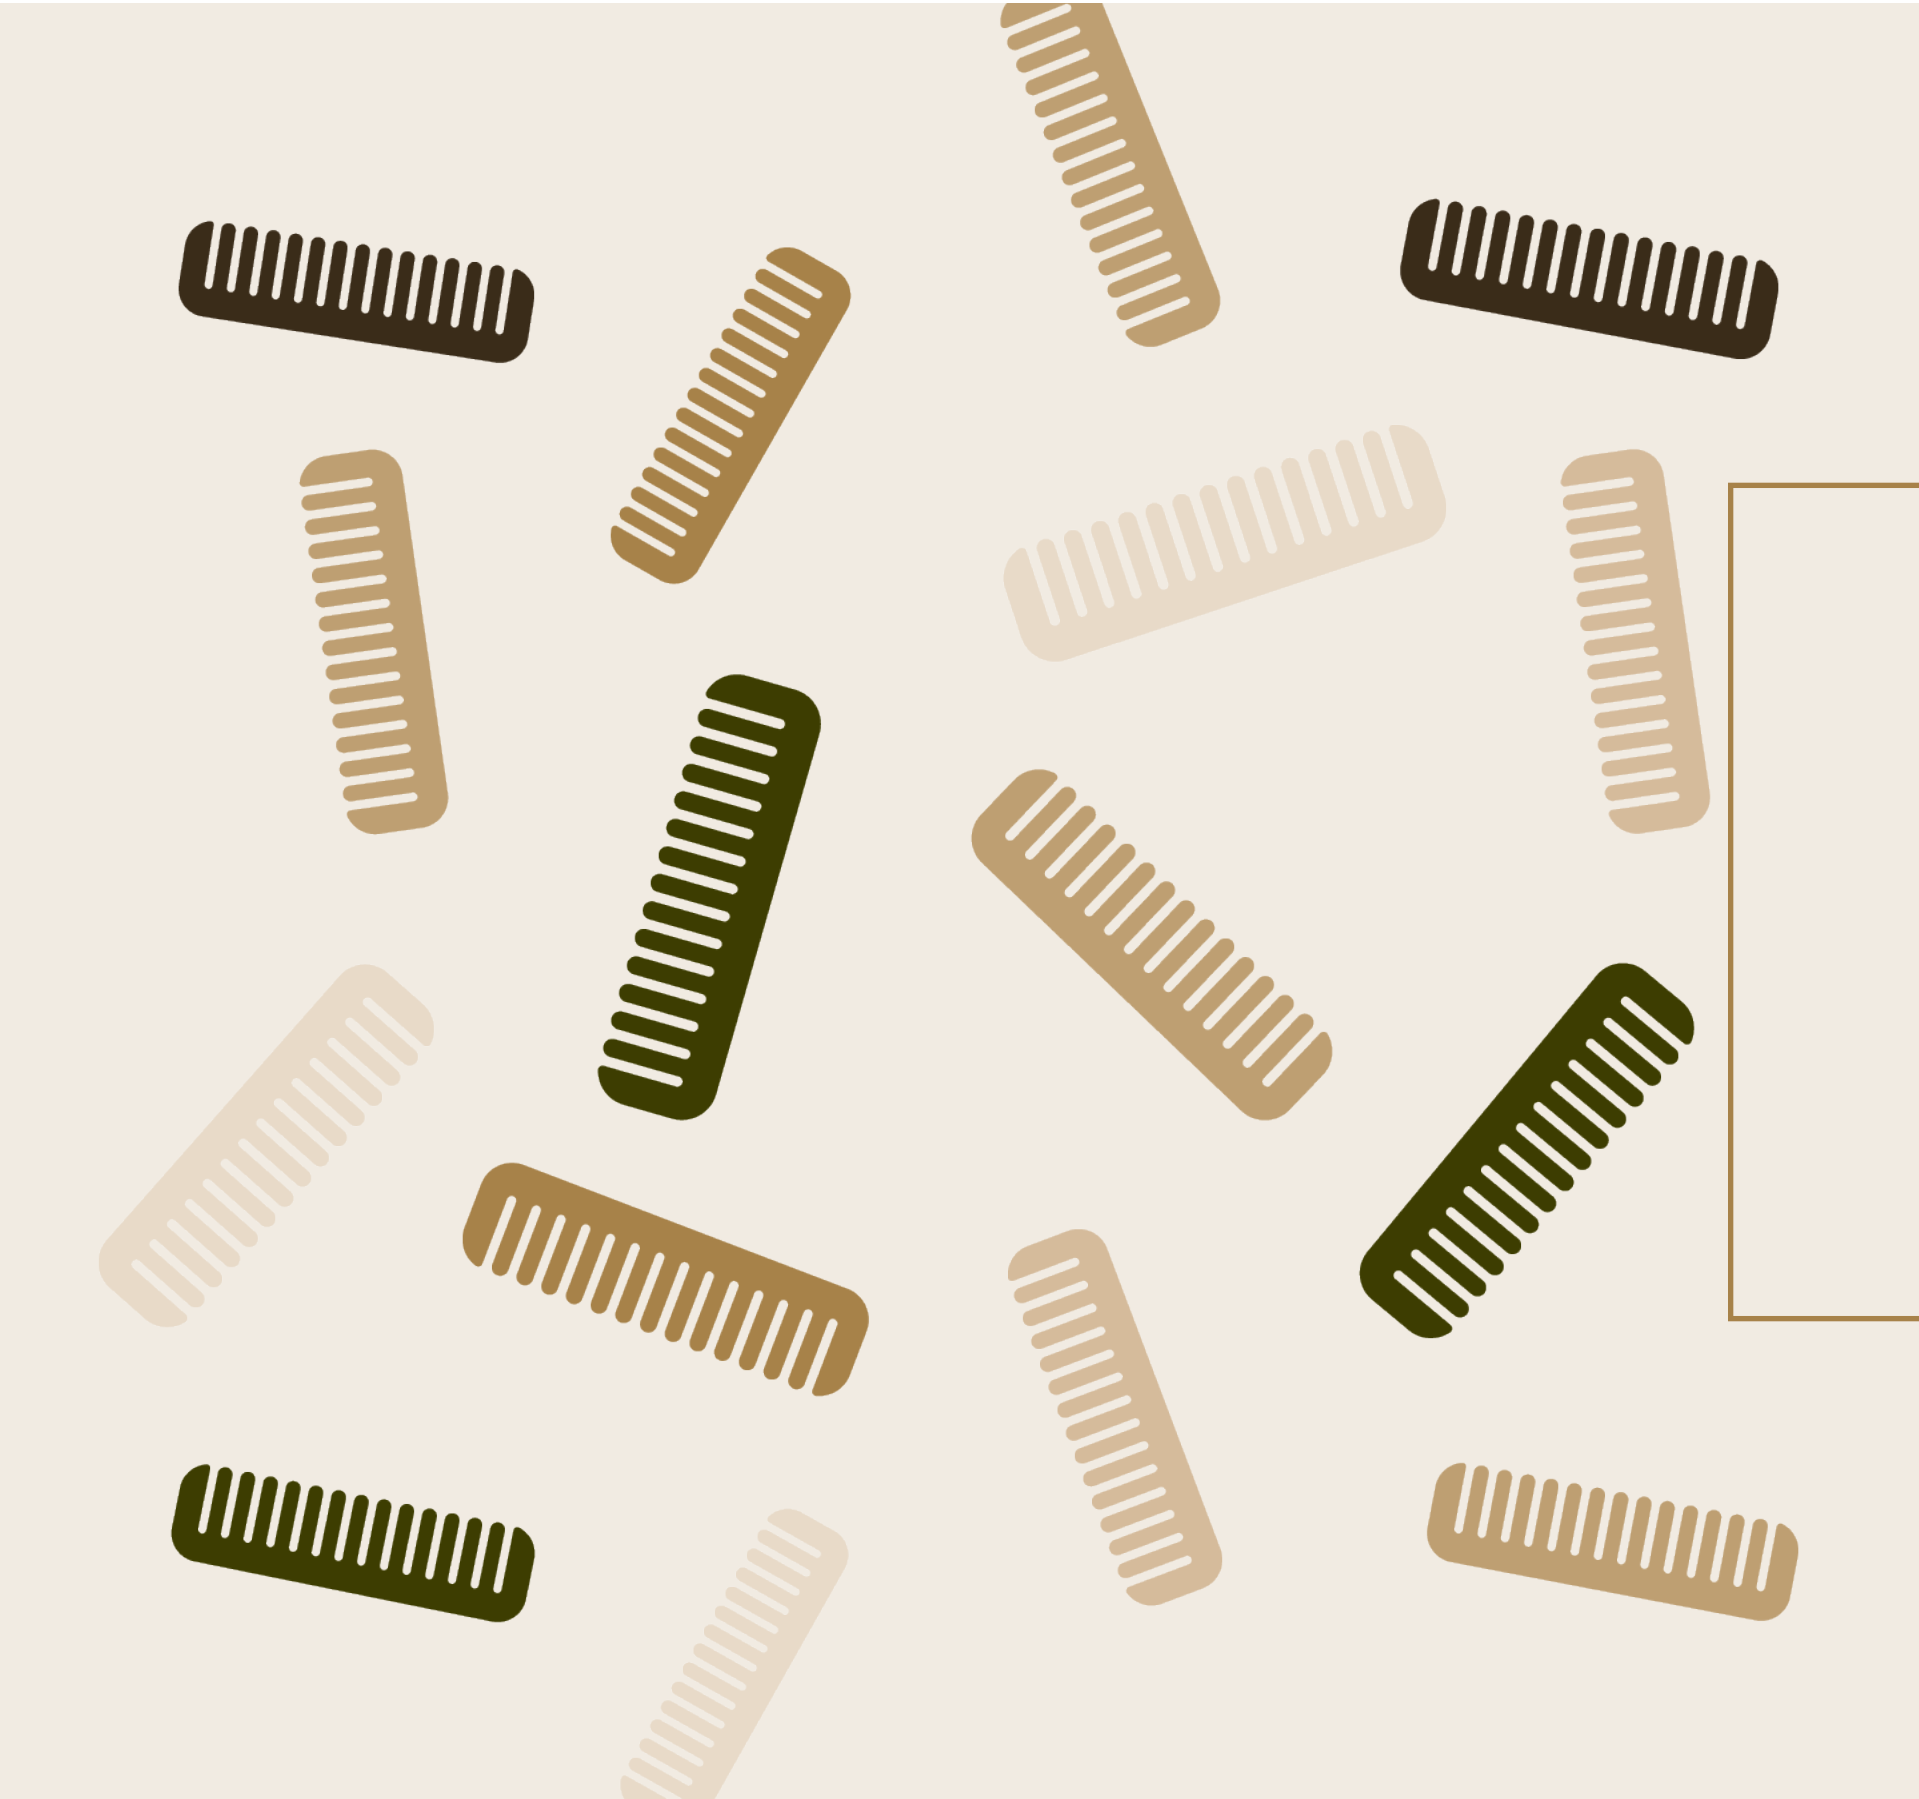

How often should you use a deep conditioner?

A minimum of twice a month, and preferably weekly for dry (high porosity) or damaged hair.

This Ultimate Guide contains over 100 deep conditioners currently on the market for natural hair. For each product, we have indicated if it contains protein, aloe, or coconut. We have also indicated whether it is good for low density (thin) or high density (thick) hair.

All the deep conditioners in this guide are CG safe. Manufacturers often change ingredients in formulas so be sure to double-check the ingredient list before buying.
