How To Use This Guide

There is a lot of information in the guide - don't get overwhelmed. We have done the work for you. All you need to do is:

- 1 - Take our Hair Quiz.
- 2 - Read the short introduction in the guide.
- 3 - Review the icons at the top of the guide.
- 4 - Check the icons underneath each product.
- 5 - Match the icons with those at the top of the guide.
- 6 - Select those products that match your hair characteristics. For example, if your hair is thin or thinning (low density) look for products that are marked for low density hair.
- 7 - If you are allergic to certain ingredients, such as aloe or coconut, avoid products with those icons.
- 8 - If your hair is limp or damaged, pick products with the protein icon.

A question often asked by curlies is, “Which products would be good for my hair”? This is a difficult question to answer because no two people have the same hair characteristics. What may work for you, may not work for someone else. Hair density, hair health, hair damage, porosity, genetics, and strand thickness all play a role. Even the weather and climate you live in affect how your curly hair behaves (or not) with certain products.

For example, styling products high in glycerin typically cause a lot of frizz in humid or very dry climates. But under the right weather conditions, these same products may work wonders for curly hair.

Healthy, thick hair typically does not need much protein in their hair products. In fact, products high in protein may cause the hair to feel dry and straw-like. In contrast, those with thin, low density hair often need protein in their products to get their curls to behave and not fall flat.

Some people are allergic to anything containing coconut. Others love aloe for their curls.

This Guide of 77 Favorite Frizz Fighters was compiled based on the most common recommendations from hundreds of curly, coily and wavy haired women (and men). It contains recommendations for conditioners, gels, and mousses that worked for other curlies and coilies in FIGHTING FRIZZ.

In each instance, we have indicated whether the products contain glycerin, coconut, protein, or aloe. We have also indicated whether a product is best for thin or low density hair (LD) vs thick or high density (HD) hair (or both). To determine whether a product is best for LD or HD hair, as always, we primarily considered the First Five ingredients for any given product, and then checked for additional oils and butters in the rest of the ingredients. Manufacturers often change ingredients in formulas so be sure to double-check them before buying. Finally, if you follow the CG method, we have marked certain products CG safe as well.

We hope you find this Guide useful and worthwhile!
