COCONUT-FREE Hair Product Guide

Coconut oil has been hailed for years as being supremely effective to achieve shiny, hydrated hair. One reason for this is that coconut oil is small enough to penetrate inside the hair shaft. It also contains lauric acid, which has a high affinity for hair proteins. Protein is what gives the hair its strength and structure and is especially needed for damaged, bleached, and colored hair.

Coconut oil is also rich in amino acids. If your hair is healthy and coarse, coconut oil can cause protein buildup, which can block moisture from entering the hair shaft, which makes your hair dry, stiff, and less elastic. And less elasticity means more breakage when combing or styling.

Thinner hair strands can get easily weighed down by direct application of coconut oil to hair strands.

If you have dry, brittle hair, too much protein and not enough moisture is often the culprit. Adding coconut oil will only increase the protein, and decrease moisture, which is the opposite of what you want. That said, healthy curly hair can benefit from the occasional pre-poo with coconut oil.

While it may be tricky to find hair products without coconut, we've got you covered. Whether you have a coconut allergy or are just looking to avoid any potential irritation, the many products in this guide will help keep your waves, coils, and curls healthy and happy!

The guide is organized into 7 sections:

- Shampoos
- Conditioners
- Deep conditioners
- Leave in conditioners
- Creams
- Gels
- Mousses

For each product, we have indicated whether it contains protein, aloe, or glycerin. If it is a styler (a product that stays in your hair), we have also indicated whether it is better for low density (thin) or high density (thick) hair.

None of the products in this guide contain coconut.

In addition, all the products are CG safe for natural hair.

Manufacturers often change ingredients in formulas so be sure to double-check the ingredient list before buying.

Note

For the shampoos, “Caution” means that the ingredients in italics may be drying, especially if the shampoo is used too frequently. Because of this property, these products are not CG.

How To Use This Guide

There is a lot of information in the guide - don't get overwhelmed. We have done the work for you. All you need to do is:

1 - Take our Hair Quiz.

2 - Read the short introduction in the guide.

3 - Review the icons at the top of the guide.

4 - Check the icons underneath each product.

5 - Match the icons with those at the top of the guide.

6 - Select those products that match your hair characteristics.

For example, if your hair is thin or thinning (low density) look for products that are marked for low density hair.

7 - If you are allergic to certain ingredients, such as aloe or avoid products with those icons.

8 - If your hair is limp or damaged, pick products with the protein icon.

FROM THE MANUFACTURER:

** You will note on the ingredients label for our Spiralicious Styling Gel that it does contain a drying alcohol, ethanol, to be exact. Our bottles of Spiralicious contain about 7/10ths of one percent ethanol. Ethanol is a necessary component in Polyquaternium 69 which is one of the ingredients we use in that gel. Spiralicious is our most popular product and has been used on curlies around the world (including me, Jess) for many years now and we have never had a single report of it causing dryness. The proportion of ethanol is so low in this product that it does not have a negative effect.
