What are the best shampoos for grays, especially curls, coils, and waves? Is your hair looking dull or faded, brassy, or a little yellowish from sun exposure, pollution, excessive heat styling, or swimming? Are you looking for a shampoo to brighten your silvers?

Purple/violet and blue shampoos deposit certain pigments onto hair that counteract brassiness and yellowing in gray hair. Purple and blue are the exact opposite of yellow and orange, respectively, so by using a shampoo specially formulated for gray hair, the yellow and orange undertones in your hair are neutralized and canceled out. This makes your silvers look brighter and shiny.

Additionally, for healthy hair, certain chemicals should be removed (clarified) from the hair from time to time. These chemicals include minerals in hard water, as well as pollutants, certain oils and butters, and artificial colors and fragrances.

For each shampoo in this Guide, we have indicated whether it is clarifying and moisturizing based on the First Five ingredients and any additional oils and butters in the rest of the ingredients. We have also indicated if products contain protein, aloe, or coconut. If you have thinning or low density hair, a product with protein can be helpful.

If you follow the CG method, look for those shampoos that are indicated to be CG safe. These shampoos do not contain any sulfates, sulfonates, silicones, or drying alcohols. Manufacturers often change ingredients in formulas so be sure to double-check the ingredients list before buying.

We hope this Guide will save you both time and money on the road to shiny silvers. Give one of these shampoos a try for at least a few weeks to see the full results.
